1. The Office of Training will shortly forward a study of enrollments in its paramilitary courses during the last eighteen months, demonstrating the lack of preparedness on the part of the Agency to provide manpower qualified to carry out paramilitary commitments. One example to be cited will be that of the WH Division, where the need for paramilitary skills is at present most urgent and which has since January 1953 provided students for our paramilitary courses as follows:

In this connection it is worth noting that as of 26 June the Office of Training has provided eleven of its staff members for temporary duty with a single WH operation; on 29 June OTR was asked to increase the number by a further twelve or more.

2. The OTR film on clandestine air operations techniques was shown to the Project Review Committee on 23 June, at which time the PRC voted in favor of the project for OTR's second film, and to an audience of approximately 100 from DD/P and OTR on 24 June.

3. Special Project [redacted] commenced 22 June for the head of a military intelligence service of an Asiatic country. This is the second project within a two-week period for which a requirement was placed upon the Office of Training without any advance warning. A program of discussions and conferences was arranged for the trainees through 25 June.

4. At a meeting with the DD/I Training Policies Committee, held on 16 June, the revised curriculum of the Basic Intelligence Course (I) was explained and discussed. On recommendation of this Committee, a lecture on "Indications Intelligence: the IAC Watch Committee" has been added to the first three weeks' phase. It will be presented by Mr. [redacted] Chief of the new IAC Indications Center.

7. An OTR representative presented a lecture on "Political and Economic Doctrines of Communism" at the Foreign Service Institute on 22 June. This class was composed of personnel from the Department of State, the U. S. Information Agency, and the Department of Defense.

8. On 19 and 20 June, Communications personnel at [REDACTED] subjected the new Type 2ST-1 portable radio base station to a 24-hour endurance test as part of the field evaluation of this equipment. A field evaluation report is being prepared for the Office of Communications.
